in North Carolina were loudly denouncing the squandering of the public lands, Mr. Bell himself had voted for every bill for the purpose of giving lands to railroads, lunatic asylums, etc . etc. He had voted for the Homestead bill, and such like squandering schemes, but he dared any of Mr. Beli's advocates to show from the record what action he had taken, or what vote he had defendants, James R. Gilmore and Frederick K dder, are given calculated to promote the interests, or protect the rights of the South. This was John Bell, the Presidenpublication be made in the Wilmington Journal for six weeks, tiel candidate of a party which changed its name so often, that he himself had fought it under ten different appellations. As for Mr. Everett, the Vice Presidential Monday in September next, then and there to appear, or candidate, he had written, and repeated a handsome oration upon Washington, and the ladies of the Mount Ver-non Association held him in high esteem. That was all right enough, but we were not now choosing an orator for the ladies, but chief magistrates for the country .-Mr. Everett's record was before us. His rank Abolitionism avowed in 1838-his signature of the card endorsing Charles Sumner and denouncing Mr. Brooks, all these and more were before the country-they formed Mr. Everett's record upon which alone he must run.

for he had no platform. In relation to State politics, Mr. Ashe spoke in reference to the public course of Messrs. Ellis & Pool, candidates for the office of Governor of North Carolina, and after a cursory view of the positions of each, he felt no hesitation in commending Hon. John W. Ellis as every way deserving the support of the people of New Hanover. Gov. Ellis was a true friend to the best interests of the whole State, and in this respect he stood far above his competitor, Mr. Pool.

Mr. John L. Cantwell offered the following resolutions: Resolved, That we cordially endorse the action of the majority of the North Carolina delegation to the National Convention which assembled at Charleston, and subsequentfying said defendant to appear at he next term of this ly met, pursuant to adjounment, in the city of Baltimore, believing that such action was in accordance with principle, and such as was demanded by a regard to the best interests and rights of the whole country.

Resolved, That to John C. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, and Joseph Lane, of Oregon, the candidates of the National Democratic party for the offices of President and Vice President of the United States, we pledge our firmest and most unwavering support, regarding them as national men, true patriots and pure Democrats.

Resolved, That to our worthy and able Governor, John W. Eilis, we will give a warm and hearty support at the approaching election on the first Thursday in August next. Resolved, That our candidates for the Senate and House of Commons, Messrs. Hall, Person and Shaw, are eminently deserving of the support of every Democrat in the county Pending action upon these, James A. Wright, Esq., who had been present at Baltimore during the sessions of the National Democratic Convention, was loudly called for and responded in an able and interesting address. He said that his first prepossessions had been in lavor of Stephen A. Douglas, provided that he should be nominated on a platform such as could be regarded as just to the Southern States But Mr. Douglas and his friends retused to concur in the adoption of such platform. They had, by the trick known as the " unit rule," been enabled to secure to the actual minority of the Convention the control of a voting majority, and they so used this voting majority as to leave to the delegates of certain of the Southern States no alternative save withdrawal, or disobedience to the positive instructions of

They did withdraw-they submitted their action regularly to the Democratic organizations of their respecive States, and they are regularly sent back to Baitimore, where the Douglas majority on the floor refuse to admit them, but do admit bogus and unauthor z d de egates in their places. He relevied also to the cases of were thrown out to make room for their substitutes, the motive being the same as that determining the exclusion of the regular and the admission of the bogus delegates from the Southern S ans -those admitted were known he Douglas men. Mr. Wright referred to the scene in the Convention when the Southern States and a portion of the North withdrew. Mr. Wright then combatted certain considerations urged against Breckincidge and Lane, 1st-It was charged that the Democratic party was a distinton party. In relutation of his charge he pointed to the consistent course of the Demo racy in delence of the Con-stitution and the Union 2d. It was asserted that they (B. and L) had "no chance." Even admitting hiswhich he aid n toto, he would refer the Opposition to 1856, when Falmore was their can fidate, and they were told with trut, that their candidate had no chance, and that it was their duty to aid the Democratic party .-The answer of the Opposition then was,-We fight for a man upo i principle, and we glory in the fact that if there was but one vote for that man we would give that vote. The Democratic party might lairly give the same

But is there indeed "no chance" as asserted ?-on the chance to defeat Lincoln and Hamlin, either before the people or in the House of Representatives, or in the Now, how is it with B ll and Everett? The whole South is Democratic-all the States have Democratic Governors and Legislatures; if the South is to unite it can only unite upon Democratic candidates, and Breckinridge and Lane are the Democratic candidates to whose RANAWAY from the subscriber's plantation, last June, his negro boy PETER. But if it went into the House, the chances for the National Democratic candidates were still better than any others, far better than those of Bell and Everett, who could command a majority in the congressional representation of but one State out of the whole thirtythree. The Senate would elect General Lane Vice President, and if the House failed he would be l'resident.-The country would be safe in either contingency.

Mr. Wright briefly touched upon the points in the record of the several candidates, and closed with a graceful appeal to Democrats to do their whole duty in the coming contest. His remarks elicited hearty and long continued applause. On motion of Dr. J. D. Bellamy, the resolutions of fered by Mr. Cantwell were then put and carried enthu-
